Dear parents and carers,

We are extremely happy to finally share our most recent OFSTED report with you.

The whole staff and myself are immensely proud of the report. Over the two days, the inspector was particularly impressed with the exceptional education the children at Nene Valley Primary School receive.

We are all delighted that the immense amount of hard work put in over the past year was reflected in the report. Notably, the work we have achieved designing a new, ambitious curriculum that supports all learners.

The report also highlights the fantastic work the school does in creating a positive educational environment for the children. It celebrates how well our children behave in school and how they take pride in the high-quality work they produce.

The report focusses on the strength in leadership and the ambition we have as leaders to develop all areas of the school, which is taking Nene Valley from strength to strength.

We are also delighted that the inspector highlighted the strength of our SEND department and the amazing work we are doing to support and challenge our most vulnerable children to meet and exceed their potential.

As with any report, we will build on our successes and look to strengthen in areas for development.

The full report is available on our website in, 'about us, OFSTED'. See link below:
